Henry Montgomery.

BALTIMORE, February 20.

By some gentlemen of veracity, just arrived in this town from Norfolk, we have received the following intelligence:

That rear-admiral Vauflable is arrived at Norfolk, with two line of battle ships, the Leopard and the Tyger, and two frigates (being part of a fleet which sailed from Brest, and which parted from there at a certain latitude)—that at their departure from France, an army of 100,000 republicans had penetrated into Spain, by Catalonia, and were laying siege to Barcelona, besides 25,000 men who had entered Spain by Biscay, and that the Spanish army had been completely routed.

That Orlend and Nienport were invaded by a numerous army; the Dutch troops almost discouraged and reduced; and that the combined armies, which were lately beaten, had been forced to retreat into Austrian Flanders; that it was impossible for Valenciennes, which was invested, to hold out much longer.

That the almost impregnable lines of Weissenburg, which the treacherous general Ferrier had delivered up to the Prussians and Germans, have been retaken by the republicans, who have again entered the Duchy of Deux-Ponts, where the grand army of the Lower Rhine have retreated.

That the Swiss cantons have renewed their treaty with the republic, and have engaged themselves by the new treaty, to observe the strictest neutrality, and to guard with a sufficient force, all the defiles through which the enemy could enter the territory of the republic; that an army of sixty thousand men, which before the new treaty, guarded these defiles, has now marched into Lower Alsace.

That also a large portion of the troops which composed the army in Savardin have marched to the siege of Toulon, yet, notwithstanding, the success of the republicans in that part have been marked by the taking of three very important posts.

That at the departure of the squadron from Brest, the news of the retaking of Toulon was expected every day, the republican army before that city amounting to 120 thousand men; which have already taken possession of all the heights and forts which surround it, and that even the enemies of the republic were persuaded that that city could not hold out much longer.

That the laws of the republic, were in full vigor, and had never yet, since the beginning of the revolution, been so well obeyed; that the most perfect tranquillity and harmony reigned every where; that the 450,000 men of reserve, being the class of citizens, from the age of eighteen to twenty-five, are to assemble early in the spring to go to reinforce the armies on the frontiers.

That the republic were resolved to take ample vengeance, for the tame conduct of the senate of Genoa, in suffering such acts of violence to be practised upon the citizens of a nation at peace with them.

Extract of a letter from a merchant in New-York, to his friend in this town, dated Feb. 15.

"This moment arrived a ship from Amsterdum, in ballast—brings no letters; but relates, that Toulon has been retaken by the French, and 20,000 men were killed on both sides.

"Thirteen American ships were freighted in Holland, to Portugal and Spain, but on receiving the news of the Algerine cruifers, they unloaded again, and are coming home in ballast. Thanks to our dear friends the British. The above vessel left Amsterdum the 23d of December."

On Tuesday morning Mr. Jean

Baptist Fanchet, who came in the squadron from Brest, set off from this town for Philadelphia, escorted by a party of Capt. Moor's troop of light-dragoons. It is supposed he is to replace M. Genet. He left Brest the 18th of December.

We have the pleasure to announce, that the fortunate ticket No. 12,536, which has drawn a prize of 20,000 dollars, in the Washington Hotel Lottery, belongs to Mrs. S. C. Van Bibber, the amiable wife of Mr. Andrew Van Bibber, merchant, of this town.

NORFOLK, February 12.

Late News from France.

On Saturday last arrived in Hampton Roads, the French frigate Charant, of 40 guns, from Rochfort, and on Monday the remainder of the French fleet, consisting of the following vessels, viz: Le Tigre, of 80 guns; Le Jean Bart, of 74 guns; Le Semillante, of 40 guns; Le Papillon brig, and a corvette. They sailed from France on the 26th of December last, in company with two more ships of the line, which may be daily expected here or at New-York.

They have brought out the new minister appointed to succeed Mr. Genet; and also consuls for the different districts of the United States.

On their passage they have taken four prizes, viz, a frigate and sloop of war from the East-Indies, who were dispatched expressly with the news of the capture of Pondicherry, and on board the treasure and trophies taken there; they also captured a ship in company with the above, who had on board (besides other property) 87,000 dollars; they were sent to France under a sufficient convoy. The fourth was a merchantman taken near this coast, and whose arrival is hourly looked for.

The information received by this fleet is, that the internal affairs of France are now in a regular & prosperous train: that the Pyrenean army, after several successful battles, had entered Spain, and conquered the whole of Catalonia, except Barcelona; that so rapid were the successes of the French arms in that quarter, there was little doubt but by this time the Carnagrole dance was performing in the environs of Madrid; that the batteries raised against Toulon had succeeded in cutting off the communication between the inlet and outer harbours, which had reduced the town to the greatest distress for provisions, the garrison on an allowance of four ounces of bread per day; that Toulon had twice offered to capitulate, but the convention having passed a decree for its total destruction, the republican general was determined they should surrender at discretion; that the Prussian army in Alsace meeting with strong opposition, had given up the design of besieging Strauburg, had receded the Rhine, and totally quitted the territories of the republic; that Austrian Flanders, Courtray and Nienport were in possession of the republican troops, and Orlend close besieged; that the convention had decreed the seizure of all goods & merchandise the manufactures of her enemies and placed them in the public stores, paying the former owners of them; and also that no more should be admitted into France from those countries during the war; that the cruising frigates on the coast of France have been particularly successful; and that the republic in spite of the perfidy of the Toulonese, will have ready for the sea by the last of February, a fleet of fifty sail of the line well manned. We also understand that M. Bompard is under arrest at Paris.

MARTINSBURG, February 24.

In the estimate of the expenses of the war department for the year 1794, are the following articles, which will give to the world some information of the means the United States have for prosecuting a war, should they in any event be driven into one. The Secretary proposes that new carriages be provided for two hundred and thirty pieces of brass field-artillery—and garrison carriages for one hundred and thirty-four pieces of iron cannon. That new beds be made for forty mortars. That one thousand four hundred stand of arms be repaired, and one thousand two hundred cleaned—and that forty brass field pieces be cast out of useless mortars. There are in the report, estimates of the expense of one hundred tons of lead; seventy-five tons of gunpowder; one thousand rifles; ten thousand cartridge boxes; two hundred tents; one hundred horsemen's tents; one hundred marquee; and magazines to be built, &c. These with the pay, subsistence and clothing of the troops of the United States, and volunteers, together with the charges of garrison and arsenal duties, and the pensions of invalids, will form an aggregate expense of one million four hundred and fifty-seven thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine dollars and one cent—and no more.

By the latest accounts from the fighting powers, we learn, that the French in general, are rather successful; that they are keeping up encounters with the combined forces not yet in winter quarters, upon the whole extent of the lines from Alsace round about, even unto Dunkirk and the sea. These encounters are attended with much slaughter; various successes, and very little progress towards peace.

March 3.

The Dedalus, a British frigate, which has for some time lain at Norfolk, has very narrowly escaped being burnt by a New-England captain, joined by the inhabitants, who had two of his hands pressed by the British captain—and who was however obliged to liberate them afterwards: By a revengeful disposition, the British captain had fired into the New-England vessel with language; and a ball which passed under her bow, went through a stable and killed a horse.—The inhabitants of Norfolk had met together, and had determined not to let the frigate sail without unloading the cargo of pork and other provisions she has on board, intended for the British fleet, and which were purchased there contrary to the treaty, and which had enhanced the price of that article to more than thirty per cent.

In retaliation for the French frigate, which was in violation of the law of nations, taken in the port under the guns of Genoa, & the crew inhumanly butchered, the rear-admiral at Norfolk has taken possession of the British frigate but did not dispose of the crew in the same manner the English did at Genoa.

Lexington, April 12.

We have been informed, that on 2d or 3d inst. four men and two horses were drowned in Cumberland river, on their way through the wilderness. One of them had a considerable sum of money with him in bank bills, and to prevent its getting wet, tied it about his neck. One other had a considerable sum in specie, which being in his saddle bags lost with his horse but himself saved.

INDIAN NEWS.

Accounts from the N. W. side of the Ohio, state, that the Indians are very troublesome in the neighbourhood of Columbia and Cincinnati; that they lately took a prisoner from the former, who made his escape and informs, that the Indians interrogated him with respect to the situation of those places, and frequently contradicted him, adding they knew as much as he could inform them, for they were in both these towns every week whilst the inhabitants were asleep.

It is reported that the two boys taken on Braithen's creek (mentioned in a former paper) after emancipation, were set at liberty by the Indians, and have returned home. This, if true, opens a new scene of Indian barbarity, unheard of before!

At a meeting of the Democratic Society of Kentucky, in Bourbon county, held at Paris, March 31st 1794.

Resolved That Mr. Bradford be requested to give following address to the citizens of Kentucky, a place in his next paper.

Fellow-Citizens:

WHEN the period arrived that Kentucky was no longer to be considered as a dependent part of the State of Virginia, and when her collective wisdom was employed in framing a Constitution for her government; great were our hopes and expectations, from the known wisdom and experience of many members of Convention, that a more complete form of Government would be devised, than that of any other State in the Union. As time had discovered many defects in almost every Constitution in the United States, which could not have been so easily foreseen when they were framed, we hoped these deficiencies would have been considered by our Convention, as so many Beacons set up for us, in order that we might avoid those Scylla's and Charybides upon which they had unfortunately fallen.

But how exceedingly disappointed were our expectations when our present form of Government first made its appearance! And how fully hath its operation since, justified those fears and apprehensions which many citizens had of that undue, aristocratical influence which one branch of the legislature would attempt over the other! What jarring and discord took place between them at the first sitting of the Assembly, when affixing the salaries and fees of certain officers of government! And how dreadfully has the same spirit of dissension prevailed ever since, to the great injury of the Commonwealth! How often has our immediate representatives been urged, and in some measure induced to augment what they thought was a compensation adequate to the services of those officers, notwithstanding the petitions and remonstrances of their constituents to the contrary! And when for these, and other reasons, the citizens, at the last general election, almost unanimously manifested a desire to alter our Constitution; and when in conformity with that desire, our immediate representatives brought forward a bill for the purpose of calling a Convention; how was it treated by the Senate? Was it not with the most sovereign contempt? Surely these things, and many others which your own observation must have pointed out to you, ought to engage the most serious attention of every freeman in the state. If our Constitution functions such conduct, or is the original cause of these evils, certainly it ought to be speedily amended. If an aristocratical few are possessed of such contemptuous boldness when our government is so young, as to trample upon, and despise the sovereign will of the people, what may we expect, if we supinely submit to their depredations on our liberties and property for a number of years, but that at last we shall be deprived wholly of the means of doing ourselves justice; or, at least, it will be more difficult. Now is the time for us to step forward with an intrepidity becoming freedom, and assert our rights.

Let each of us at the ensuing election, make choice of men to represent us who will use their utmost endeavors to obtain a new Convention. Let us write Convention on our tickets, that it may be clearly evinced to both branches of the Legislature that it is the wish of a great majority of the citizens. Let us unite in a remonstrance to the Assembly, stating our dissatisfaction with their former refusal to comply with our desire, and declaring our determination to obtain a new Convention; and if they still persist in refusing to comply, we know the last resource.

This plan we intend to follow in this county, and we expect the citizens of each county in the State to join us heartily therein; and we hope through unanimity, resolution and perseverance to obtain our wishes.

Signed, by order of Society,
WM. HENRY, President.

Telfe,
JOHN BOYD, Clerk.

The AMERICAN HERO.

A SAPPHEIC ODE.

By NATHANIEL NILES, A. M.

WHY should vain mortals tremble at the sight of Death and destruction in the field of battle; Where blood and carnage clothe the ground in crimson, Sounding with death-groans?

Death will invade us by the means appointed, And we must all bow to the King of terrors; Nor am I anxious, if I am prepared, What shape he comes in.

Infinite goodness teaches us submission; Bids us be quiet under all his dealings; Never repining, but forever praising GOD our Creator.

Well may we praise Him—all His ways are perfect; Though a rependence, infinitely glowing, Dazzles in glory on the sight of mortals Struck blind by lustre!

Good is JEREMIAH in bestowing sunshine, Nor less His goodness in the storm and thunder: Mercies and judgments both proceed from kindness—Infinite kindness.

O then exult that GOD forever reigneth, Clouds, which around HIM hinder our perception, Bind us the stronger to exalt His Name, and Shout louder praises!

Then to the Wisdom of my LORD and MASTER, I will commit all that I have or wish for; Sweetly as babes sleep will I give my life up When call'd to yield it.

Now Mars, I dare thee, clad in smoky pillars, Barking from bomb-shells, roaring from the cannon, Rattling in grape-shot, like a storm of hail-stones, Torturing Ether.

Up the bleak Heavens, let the spreading banners rise, Breaking like Etna through the smoky columns, Low'ring like Egypt o'er the falling city, Wantonly burnt down.

While all their hearts quick palpitate for havoc, Let slip your bloodhounds, nam'd the British lions; Dauntless as Death stares; nimble as the whirlwind; Dreadful as Demons!

Let oceans wait on all your floating castles; Fraught with destruction, horrible to Nature: Then, with your sails fill'd by a storm of vengeance, Bear down to battle.

From the dire caverns made by ghostly miners, Let the explosion, dreadful as volcanoes, Heave the broad town, with all its wealth and people, Quick to destruction!

Still shall the banner of the King of Heaven

Never advance where I'm afraid to follow: While that precedes me with an open bosom, War, I defy thee.

Fame and dear Freedom lure me on to battle, While a fell Despot, grimmer than a Death's-head, Stings me with serpents, fiercer than Medusa's To the encounter.

Life for my country, and the cause of Freedom, Is but a trifle for a worm to part with; And if preserved in so great a contest, Life is redoubled.
